FOREWORD

If, in the clouded future, this volume should revive in you a single memory tinged with the sacredness of youth; or in any way preserve and extend the glorious traditions of old Dahlon-ega, then its creation will have been justified.

A decorative arch frame made of thin, ornate lines. The arch is topped with a small floral ornament. The sides of the arch are decorated with vertical lines and small floral motifs. The base of the arch is decorated with a large, symmetrical floral ornament.

DEDICATION

To a man strong in convictions, active in office and just in authority, this, the sixteenth volume of the CYCLOPS, is dedicated. Captain Willis A. Hedden, soldier and gentleman, has been a worthy representative of his government in the zealous and exemplary performance of duty. To him is accorded the privilege of terminating his stay at this institution with a complete assurance of having been its benefactor.

Senior Class History

That cynic who defined college-bred as a four-year loaf never attended school at Dahlonga. For loafing, as Cohen would say, "is the very thing we've done everything else besides." In each sixteen hours allotted us, and for four years at that, we have crowded twenty hours of activity. Now look at us! But it was worth it. From fuzzy wrap puttees to shining leather; from rusty Springfield to rattling sabre; from brass collar ornaments to silver tabs; from blissful ignorance to a not-so-blissful realization of our total insignificance, we have graduated.

To attempt a history of these survivors is an heroic task; To hazard a prophecy would be sheer speculation. Through four years of varying fortunes, constant change and not infrequent distraction we have fought (pardon the self-felicitation) a good fight. Coming in with a new administration, aiding in the foundation of its policies, and leading a never-constant student body in its activities have been our diversions.

And have the best four years of our lives been spent successfully? We hope so. At any rate they were pleasantly profitable. For, discounting the book lore we may have acquired, much has been gleaned from the laboratory of life during our daily experiments. If four years of effort have turned but a single page in the book of human conduct, they were well worth while.

Successful? Why certainly. When we shall be content to bask in the soft light of memories, in that time of life between tattoo and taps, the keenest delight of all will come from youth, lived again.

And so, as outgoing seniors, we find it woefully inadequate to bid the customary farewells. We think we appreciate Dahlonga, and what it has meant and will mean to us, but really we do not. The passing of each year will, in a measure, add to the never ceasing regard certain to be felt. Friendships, as sacred as holy writ, and perhaps associations dearer still, will be our exceeding great reward.

ROBERT C. MEADERS, Historian.

*We seem to pause upon the verge of life,
A self-important little group of those
Whose infant efforts are about to be
Crowned with man-made laurel.
No doubt or fear assails us as we stand,
Unmindful, by a stream of hidden depth;
No stones have bruised our feet, no jagged
Rocks the tutored hands have gashed.
Blithely we embark on fragile craft,
In search of something by ourselves unknown.
May God preserve a spark of that
Which lights so gloriously our taking-off,
Until its flickering beams shall glow
Upon a broken hulk, returning slow.*

Junior Class History

When we matriculated as freshmen in September of 1926, things seemed dark indeed for a season. We were strangers in a strange land. But as time passed, and we gathered about us a circle of friends, a love for N. G. A. C. grew and grew. Our class, by far the largest in college, was soon organized and work began in earnest. Nine months passed quickly and we ceased to be frosh, a polite term for objects of good-natured ridicule.

Three pleasant months brought us back as sophomores, one step nearer our goal and filled with renewed determination. A few familiar faces were missing, but there were many new ones to fill the gaps. It was indeed a pleasure to be able to look down upon the insignificant freshmen and to exhibit casual disdain for such purile beings. The Sophomore Year passed rather slowly, for it was filled with genuine work. But when at last it was gone, all those hours of toil were forgotten in the joy of a thing accomplished.

Another step toward a goal had been taken and we found ourselves upper-classmen, juniors. When we gathered for the third year our number had dwindled from eighty-seven to thirty-four, but zealous initiative was even stronger. Our Junior Year has been a glorious one, and as it fast draws to a close, we may look upon it with a sense of pride. Soon it will have gone, and although we watch its passing with regret, we realize that its disappearance brings us to the last lap.

When the present Junior Class has passed forever, except from the minds of its members and contemporaries, may we never forget the bonds of friendship that have been slowly but strongly welded through daily toil. The goal is in sight; one more year and we will have gone out into the world. Many of us will be separated forever, but those pleasant experiences we have enjoyed together will forever link our lives—in memories.

J. S. TANKERSLEY, Historian.

Sophomore Class History

As historian of the Sophomore Class of the North Georgia Agricultural College, it becomes my duty and privilege to extend to you a brief narrative of its activities. It affords extreme pleasure to stop a moment and recall the past of this class.

When we emerged from the narrow confines of rathood to the broader and clearer atmosphere of the Sophomore Class, we no longer beheld things through a glass, darkly.

And remarkable indeed are the records made in the educational, military, athletic and social life of this group. In military, Manager Camp has "it," for he is rated the best-drilled cadet on College Hill. McGarity, McCurry and Owen starred on the football team. In basket-ball we have Owen, while Hodgson is coach of the freshman quintet. Helen Head is Captain and forward par excellence of the Co-Eds. We are glad, too, that this class has been able to contribute a manager for each of the major sports.

McCurry, Captain of the Company "B" boxing team, is an able pugilist, while "Peanut" Richardson holds the school bantamweight title. We boast of A. L. Jackson, who has won distinction, not only on the local cinder path but on those of other colleges in cross-country and distance events. It may also be remarked that he has been very successful in his campus course.

In debating, we have discovered embryo Websters and Henrys galore. As our crowning distinction we offer R. S. McConnell, who, beyond a doubt, is the biggest sergeant on the campus.

In the face of the interest that has been shown, it is reasonable to conclude that the influence of this group will be an active agent in the promotion of better student activities. We have put on the full chivalric uniform of advancement and now stand "four square to all winds."

Our desire is to reach that which we have not yet attained. The victory is ours, although it will not be won in a day or in a year. We are approaching graduation step by step, day by day.

*"Heaven is not reached at a single bound,
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to the summit, round by round."*

ALTON H. GLASURE, Historian.

Freshman Class History

It must be admitted that on September 18, 1928, when our band assembled at N. G. A. C., we were a motley-looking crowd. The only common qualities were freshness and extreme verdancy. It took us only a few days, however, to redeem an apparent ignominy by real, honest-to-goodness activity.

The sophomores bothered us but little (?) due to our superiority of numbers. You could usually find us mixed up in any excitement that was begun—and we initiated quite a bit of it ourselves. For a few weeks our watchword was “Belts and Shoe-shines.” Our favorite pastimes, as taught by upper-classmen, were “Submarine” and “Treeing the Fox.” These trifles, however, were forgotten in the anxiety and worry which resulted from our search for an effective hair tonic, for we, like many other poor sheep, were early led up for the shearing.

After getting into the hum of things the Freshman Class took on a lively spirit and began to make itself manifest in all leading phases of college life. From the very beginning, our class showed a special aptitude for cutting classes and avoiding O. D.’s and certain other dignitaries considered so necessary by our peers. In fact the entire faculty looked askance at our capers, awaiting each new move with fearful anxiety.

We feel sure from everyday happenings in math, English, history and other subjects that we are blessed with men who will later in life become doctors, lawyers, senators and what-nots—probably the latter—of note.

On the athletic field we early gained renown. The Freshman Class furnished splendid material both for the football and basket-ball squads, to say nothing of track, baseball, boxing and other sports.

We have tried to live up to the standard of good sportsmanship and play the game of life fairly, whether on athletic field or in lecture room. If the present group continues as it has begun, there are wonderful possibilities in store for the Class of 1932.

THIRD ROW: Meeks, Siler, Huskin, Owen, Johnson, York, Cochran, Maxwell, Hodgson and Manager Ferguson.

Enclops

J. R. HITCHCOCK (Captain), Halfback

A plunging back and a great leader, Hitchcock was a consistent ground gainer.

JOE HUTSON, Coach

Handicapped by his mid-season start with the team, Coach Hutson deserves a great deal of credit for the work accomplished.

R. S. McCONNELL, Tackle

"Hamp"—a mighty man on offense and a most persistent obstacle to opposing backs.

Cyclops

L. M. ELLARD, End

"Pot" had the speed and sand necessary for a good flankman.

POPE BARROW, Tackle

Pope did everything but breathe fire at his opponents. A fine defensive player.

WILL EVANS (Alternate Captain), Center

An accurate passer from center and a vicious tackler. Bill played a steady game always.

RALPH PRICE, Halfback

Although light in weight, Price had sand in his craw. A fast back.

Cyclops

J. W. McGARITY, Fullback

A consistent gainer through the line and always alert on the defense.

C. P. MADDON, Guard

Posey played a clean, steady game. An ideal linesman.

"PAT" PATTERSON, Guard

There's life in the old man yet. Pat specialized in breaking through the line to get his man for a loss.

S. J. McCURRY, End

Big and rangy, "Mac" played a splendid game at end.

Cyclops

W. C. SILER, End

A fast little man with lots of grit.

E. D. REED, Center

Reed's long legs always placed him under the punts on time to stop the luckless back in his tracks.

R. D. OWEN, Halfback

"Dad," a fast, light back that shows good promise.

R. L. MALONE, Tackle

Handicapped by an early injury, "Slats" was unable to display his wares.

Cyclops

ROY HODGSON, Quarterback

A runner, passer and kicker of real merit, Hodgson was a good field general.

C. E. Goss, Tackle

A big, powerful linesman who should be valuable on next year's team.

JESSIE YORK, Quarterback

A speedy little back who was hard to stop.

BLAKE HUSKIN, Guard

Although a trifle light for his position, Huskin played a good defensive game.

Cyclops

LANDON WATERS, End

Fast and a splendid tackler, Waters displayed the old fighting spirit.

CECIL COCHRAN, Guard

Cochran was a linesman who always gave everything he had.

PERCY HELMER, Halfback

Fast, and a splendid broken field runner.

T. L. MAXWELL, Guard

A willing worker and a fine backer on defense.

Cyclops

Basket-Ball Squad, 1929

FRONT ROW: Hodgson, guard; Lankford, forward; Hitchcock (Captain), guard; Cheek, guard; Chastain, forward.

BACK ROW: Coach Bush; Leverette, forward; Tippens, center; Carroll, center; Evans, guard; Williams, forward, and Coach Hutson.

Cyclops

HITCHCOCK

Captain "Hitch," a rearin', tearin' guard with lots of fight.

WILLIAMS

The flashy forward who sinks 'em from all angles and distances.

CARROLL

The shooting mayor. Dah-longa's most consistent scorer and coolest floor general.

CHEEK

"Levi" Cheek, the ubiquitous guard. Speedy and full of endurance, he has basket-ball IT.

LEVERETTE

This boy is simply poisonous to his opponents. Fast and a good shot.

Cyclops

EVANS

Bill was Coach's "handy man around the house." Center, forward and guard, he has played them all and played them well.

TIPPENS

"Husky" is a scrappy center who always gave his best; a valuable cog in the N. G. A. C. machine.

LANKFORD

A gritty forward with lots of reach. Lank's dribbling made him a hard man to check.

HODGSON

A steady guard and good defensive player. Coach, too, of the Freshman quintet.

CHASTAIN

Another versatile man with a great athletic future. Running at guard or forward, Bob has shown the stuff.

Basket-Ball

Taken by and large, the 1928-29 basket-ball season has been replete with success. The Bluejackets, led by Captain Hitchcock, have more than broken even with their opponents and have endeared themselves to the student body by defeating Piedmont and Young Harris, ancient rivals of Dahlongega. So consistently have they worked that it is difficult to pick outstanding figures from the squad. In point of scoring, Williams and Carroll, elongated forward and equally lengthy center, certainly led. A rigorous schedule, plenty of competition and excellent coaching from skippers Bush and Hutson have all contributed toward making a real outfit of basketeers.

The Little Cadets, coached by Carroll and led by the versatile Helen Head, numbered among their victims such teams as the University of Chattanooga and Oglethorpe University. For their persistence in the face of obstacles, their loyalty and never-say-die attitude, they are to be commended.

For the first time, Dahlongega was represented by a freshman quintet, a group of game little fighters who made berths for themselves on next year's varsity by a very excellent brand of basketball.

In spite of the splendid showing made by this year's teams, the fives of next season should, with incoming material and that from the '29 freshmen, make N. G. A. C.'s Bluejackets even more formidable.

Boxing

Boxing, as Cross Country Running, is in it's second year as a sport. As a result of the inauguration of the sport, the college was represented by a boxing team at the R. O. T. C. Camp, Camp McClellan, 1928, for the first time. The season opened January 5 with A. H. (Ohio) Wilson, Florida University, a former student of North Georgia, as coach. He put forty enthusiastic entries through a concentrated training program, and then staged an inter-company tournament which was won by Company "A" by a small margin of victories. The inter-company tournament decided the college team which, under the captaincy of Pat Patterson, undertook a hard schedule for a second-year team. The first match presaged the ability of the team. On Feb. 14, the team met the University of Georgia freshmen at Dahlonega in one of the most thrilling matches ever seen by a discriminating boxing enthusiast. The two teams alternately won close, exciting bouts until the score in bouts stood 3 to 3. The seventh bout, heavyweight class, was a gruelling fight which required an extra round for the decision. Shope, N. G. A. C., won it very decisively in the fourth round, and with it won the match for his college. The other matches were held too late in the season to be reported.

Cross Country Running

SILER

HUFF

Cross-country running was re-established as a college sport last year. The sport, like all others, demands long, hard training and experience. Consequently, last year was only the beginning of the run, and this year, the first mile. Eventually the college should have a strong team. More than two dozen contenders were in training for the inter-Company run which was won narrowly by Company "A." The team, with A. L. Jackson as Captain, had one dual meet, that with the U. of Ga.

HORATIUS AT THE BRIDGE

(As is)

Horatius, ehildren, is a bold, bad warrior who is going to keep some people from crossing a bridge. Horatius is coming up to the bridge now. No, he isn't running, he's too dignified to run. Horatius is on the bridge. He is grasping a big blue pencil firmly in his right hand. In his left is an umbrella. The enemy is approaching.

My! how fierce they look. They carry folded pieeces of paper which they wave frantically at Horatius, uttering strange noises all the while. Is Horatius afraid? No, Horatius is not afraid. He wiggles his big blue pencil fiercely, making marks on the folded papers. The enemy seatters. Horatius has won. Is he happy? Yes, Horatius is very happy, for not a one has passed his examination.

THE DAHLONEGA DAILY DISAPPOINTMENT

(Reprinted by Special Permission)

One of the most brilliant social functions of the current season was the stag bridge party given recently by Messrs. B. V. Oluble and I. M. deLerious. The party was held at the Tappa Keg Fraternity House and assembled some twenty of the hosts' alleged friends.

The house was attractively decorated with four walls, floor, ceiling, five bridge tables and twenty guests. The color scheme was dark brindle and was effectively carried out in the salted peanuts.

The hosts, noted for their sparkling personalities and ready wit, were their usual charming selves. Mr. Oluble was becomingly costumed in a dark gray coat, vest and trousers of the same material, silk socks and tan, low-cut shoes. He wore a white linen shirt caught at the throat with a tie of pale mauve. A pair of gray gloves and a gray hat completed the ensemble.

Mr. deLerious was fetchingly dressed in coat, vest and trousers of dark blue, black socks and black shoes with laces to match. His shirt was of white broadcloth and the somewhat sombre effect of his costume was offset by a tie of flaming cardinal. Mr. deLerious' coiffure consisted of a side part with the ears showing and was held in place by a liberal application of bandoline.

The two hosts, in addition to their many other attainments, are well-known for their musical and histrionic abilities. Accordingly at the conclusion of play, they were besieged with requests for numbers. After much persuasion they consented to give one selection each. Mr. Oluble performed first and thrilled his listeners with a dramatic interpretation of the tragic and ever-popular "Mob Scene," from "The Queen City." Mr. deLerious next gave a beautiful and touching rendition of "Lavolier," from "Woolworth." Mr. deLerious played his own accompaniment on a jew's harp and proved to be complete master of this instrument.

High score for the evening was made by Mr.....(name withheld by request),  $5,234\frac{1}{2}$ , and he was forthwith presented with a collapsible collar button. Mr. Oluble and Mr. deLerious tied for low score, 67s, and were presented with each others' compliments.

Upon being questioned by newspaper men late today, Mr. deLerious refused to divulge any definite information. It is generally understood, however, in select social circles, that they will give another party, the date to be announced later.
